

Figure 12. Representative taxa reflecting the predictions of the RCC. Hydropsychids and brachycentrids are primarily collectors; consistent with the RCC, their numbers smoothly increase in the downstream direction. Gastropods are largely grazers and hence rely heavily on periphyton; thus, their peak abundances in the middle reaches also conform to the RCC.